LP Office Specialist

By Mark Shaw – Mohican News Reporter

As the new Mohican Liquefied Petroleum Gas Company Office Specialist, Candi Miller fills in orders, sends out monthly statements to customers, and completes invoicing for the company. She also answers phone calls, receives applications of new customers, and sends out applications for potential customers. She says, "I am still in the learning process in many areas of this business, but so far things are going great and everyone I have been working with from day one has been a great help!"

Miller is a veteran Stockbridge-Munsee employee. Over the years, she has worked several different jobs for the Tribe and the North Star Mohican Casino Resort. In fact, she spent the majority of her career as a Promotions Events Coordinator for the Casino. For fifteen years, she booked, organized, and helped setup all the entertainment events for North Star, including outdoor concerts, promotions, sponsorships, and VIP parties. She was and still is thankful for her time there: "I really enjoyed all my years at our casino. I have met so many nice people, worked with a great staff and learned a lot over the years and for that I am grateful."

Miller says she enjoys shopping, walking, listening to music, and going to concerts, but her first and foremost love is spending time with her family. Her husband of 24 years is Chris Miller, and they

WI DNR Secretary Impressed By River Restoration

By Mark Shaw – Mohican News Reporter

On September 25, Wisconsin Department of Natural Resources (DNR) Secretary, Kathy Stepp, traveled from her office in Madison to the Stockbridge-Munsee reservation to see how the river restoration project was evolving. Chief Warden Bryon Goetsch of the Green Bay DNR region came as well. Conservation Warden Beau Miller, Council Members Joe Miller and Jo Ann Schedler, and Wildlife Biologist Randall Wollenhaup escorted them to each of the three phases of development.

In the September 15, 2012 issue the Mohican News covered an article on Stockbridge-Munsee's Red River restoration project. As one of the state's largest restoration developments, the Tribe's Environmental Department narrowed a mile long stretch of the river and forced more water to flow through a smaller area. This successfully increased the velocity of the stream, dropped the temperature of the water, and pushed silt downstream. Now brook trout are returning to the area to capture food, to discover new habitats, and to spawn.

Before the project began, Tribal Hydrologist Luke Hennigan said, "The minnows and suckers were extremely abundant in the wide, flat, degraded stretch of the stream because brook trout, cold water predators, did not have structure

Native Vote Launches National Grassroots Media Campaign "Every Native Vote Counts"

Native American media steps up to partner with Native Vote to promote voter registration and engagement message

Washington, D.C. – The National Congress of American Indians launched a national grassroots media campaign today alongside leading national Native media organizations to encourage Native people to register to vote and participate in the 2012 national election. The new campaign titled "Every Native Vote Counts" is part of the organization's ongoing non-partisan voter outreach effort, Native Vote. With a goal of turning out the largest Native vote in history in 2012 NCAI reached out to members of the media to participate in the campaign and hopes these critical partners are joined by many more in the coming weeks.

"Turning out the largest Native vote in history requires all of Indian Country working together and the Native media will play a critical role in reaching our goal. These Native media partners are volunteering the air waves – radio and television, the print media, and the web to send Indian Country an important message, 'Every Native Vote Counts,'" said Jefferson Keel, President of NCAI, the nation's oldest, largest, and most representative American Indian and Alaska Native advocacy organization. "We are excited that so many Native media outlets have stepped forward to support this national effort. This message should be part of every community gathering between now and November 6, 2012."

Native Vote has produced over a dozen Public Service Announcements (PSAs) available in video and audio for download, broadcast, and online sharing available at NativeVote.org. Additionally there are a range of materials that can be printed and distributed in communities. The PSA videos and radio spots feature messages from tribal citizens, mothers and fathers, veterans, elders, tribal leaders, celebrities, and athletes.

The national grassroots media campaign is also helping to register Native voters online. Participating websites will provide voters with the ability to register using Native Vote's partner tools. Through a new partnership with Turbo Vote, Native Vote is making it easy for voters to register to vote online at <http://nativevote.turbovote.org> – a tool which makes registering to vote as easy as ordering a DVD from Netflix. Elder Wisdom

Jeffrey A. Chicks

Jeff Alan Chicks, age 52, took the long ride home on Saturday, October 6, 2012, after a devastating, single vehicle motorcycle accident ¼ mile from his home in Horicon, WI. His friends and family joined him at the hospital and he passed away in the arms of his life-long love, Beth de Garcia (nee Bachhuber). Jeff was born on December 10, 1959. He was the 2nd of 4 children born to Evelyn Tromp (nee Ost) and Dr. Sheldon Chicks (deceased) in Milwaukee, WI. He was the only boy in the family and a member of the Stockbridge Munsee Band of Mohicans. He grew up hunting and fishing on the reservation during summer vacations, holidays, and weekend trips to his grandparents' farm outside of Gresham.

Jeff was a relatively simple but extremely intelligent man who loved to work with his hands. He taught himself to build strip canoes and made several trips to the Boundary Waters – a beautiful place of peace and tranquility. Jeff was very proud to have graduated from Madison College with a certificate in welding and he was even prouder to have reached the pinnacle of his career, holding a full-time position as a welder at internationally renowned, Bucyrus Corporation (now Caterpillar). Most recently, he had taken a position at Helgesen in Hartford to be closer to home so he and Beth could have more time together in the evenings. They had just moved to the Horicon/ Mayville area, the town she grew up in, purchasing an historic farmhouse on an acre of land with a view of the Horicon Marsh.

Jeff and Beth began their love story at 15 and 17 years of age when they worked together for the Department of Natural Resources in northern Wisconsin. Lacking the emotional maturity needed to sustain their passionate and sometimes frustrating love for each other, they separated for 27 years while each pursued careers and relationships with others. The spark of their love, however, never died and a decade ago, they found each other again and picked up where they left off, maintaining a deep and abiding love for each other through their remaining years. Together, they finished raising Beth's two sons: Griffin (age 24) and Blake (20), both of whom are profoundly grateful to have had Jeff in their lives. He was so very proud of each of them. A week before his death, Jeff said he had finally achieved the complete happiness he had searched for all his life: his job, his family, the woman he had always loved and the home he had only dreamed of. That makes his death at this time all the more tragic.

Jeff is survived by: his mother, Evelyn Tromp; step-father Tom Tromp; and sisters, Dr. Julie Chicks, Cindy Beyer and her husband, Dan, and Kathy Russell and her husband, Everett, all of the Milwaukee area. He is also survived by: 15 nieces and nephews whom he took great joy in; also, numerous cousins; and his beloved cat, Pookie. His cousins, Joe Vetter and John Koeller built Jeff's plain pine casket and he will be buried at Red Springs Cemetery near the farm where he spent so much of his childhood and where many of his ancestors are interred.

There will be a funeral service Wednesday morning, October 10 at 11:00 at the old mission, Rambling through history...

...about Dot Davids

By Jeff Vele – Mohican News Editor

As the Mohican News Editor it is my responsibility to ensure that the news you read is up to date and newsworthy. While we are not always able to achieve the first objective because we are only printed twice per month I feel we have been successful achieving the second goal.

This objective for all of the time I have been working at the Mohican News has been made easier by the steadfast commitment and reliability of one of our most cherished contributors to the paper - (Aunt) Dot Davids.

Dot began writing her column for the Mohican News over twelve years ago and ended her column with the one she wrote for the October 1, 2012 issue.

Dot wrote about a lot of different things. She wrote about past events relating to the Tribe and its people; she wrote about research she has done over the years on the Stockbridge people; she wrote about her friends and her family as they relate to the history of our Tribe; she even said a thing or two about me over the years.

Whatever Dot said for more than twelve years in the Mohican News she said with thought and wisdom from a lifetime of teaching and sharing her knowledge with others.

The Editorial Board has held discussions about what to do with this section of the paper. Others have weighed in on social media sites about what this page should be used for. Some ideas have been to include more sports from the local schools or find another columnist to take over the concept of writing to the people.

As Editor I am open to whatever people want to see in this space. My only comment is that whatever goes in this space has a tremendous duty and obligation to be as credible and memorable as the articles Dot emailed or sometimes even drove to our offices to be on time for over twelve years!

So, Aunt Dot, you were always amazed by my technical know-how so I will flip your picture in Photoshop and say, "Goodbye and thank you Dot for making my job easier and my life more enriched by your words and wisdom..."

Hennigan added, "Prior to the restoration, the cold-water fisheries surveys [were conducted] to determine the quality of the Red River's fish community, [and they] did not produce a single brook trout. The surveys of the Red River now capture around 10 brook trout per segment, and the condition of the fish community, as measured by the cold-water index of biotic integrity, has improved from poor to good."

Hennigan ended by saying, "Continued growth of near shore forests will contribute more woody debris and leaves to feed aquatic invertebrate populations as well as provide shade to decrease the Red River's water temperatures. Both will continue to increase the number of brook trout in the restored segments."

After seeing the restoration of the Red River, Kathy Stepp said she was "Very impressed just to be able to see what it looked like before, through the drawings and the pictures, and [now to see] what's happening in real life. It's really a jewel for the region."

When asked if more of these projects should be encouraged in the future, Stepp said, "Absolutely, but I don't even think it needs my encouragement. It's happening all without the state's input. We're pushing, I should say, which is an equally impressive part of this. We've got partners all over the state who are doing projects like this, and it's just a privilege to be able to come and see it."

Tobacco Marketed to Youth

By Mark Shaw – Mohican News Reporter

In the twenty-first century, commercial tobacco will kill one billion people globally. “This is the worst pandemic the world has ever known,” David Axt, Director of Pharmacy at the Stockbridge-Munsee Health and Wellness Center, said to an audience of twenty people at the Mohican Family Center. The “Persons of Influence Dinner” was held at 6 PM on September 25 and included a free meal catered by Pine Hills.

Axt told the seven teenagers, 2 kids, and 11 parents in attendance that tobacco abuse was a symbolic act for young beginners. When they smoke, they are essentially saying, “I’m no longer my mother’s child, I’m tough, I’m an adventurer, and I’m cool.”

Over a decade ago, the tobacco industry utilized their “Youth Public Programs” to help market their product to minors. Under the disguise that their public relations tool was designed to prevent under-aged smoking, the industry portrayed tobacco use as an adult choice. Many people will recall seeing the illustrated flyer of a sweaty girl with her hair blown back by a cigarette puff. The cartoon was colored in blue and black ink, but the captions were in fiery orange and yellows: “TOBACCO IS WHACKO IF YOU’RE A TEEN.” While this advertisement may have appeared to be a public service announcement, it actually was a deceptive device used to attract teenagers to smoking. “When you portray something as an adult choice to young people, it makes [the activity] more appealing, and they [the tobacco industry] knew that,” Axt said.

Stockbridge-Munsee high school student Travis Spice was asked if tobacco advertisements influenced teenagers, and he said, “I think they do because they always have adults doing it and [the teenagers] have parents who do it, so they think it’s cool.”

Today, the tobacco industry is marketing their products to look and taste like candy. Camel’s Orbs, a dissolvable tobacco pellet with cinnamon or mint flavoring, has a similar appearance to Tic Tac’s. Furthermore, chewing tobacco now comes in colorful, bubblegum-like packaging and includes a variety of flavors: wintergreen, cherry, and candy apple. Candy-flavored cigarillos are wrapped like elementary school markers or Fruit Roll-Ups with printed illustrations of their flavors: wild honey and coconut vanilla. Lastly, edible candy tobacco pipes claims their products tastes like watermelon, blueberry, and bubblegum.

In response to the rise of smoke-free air laws and the declining cigarette use in America (but not worldwide), the tobacco industry is coming out with entirely new lines of candy tobacco. They know their primary advertising demographic is impressionable teenagers and pre-teens. If these minors become addicted to this cancerous product at a young age, they will most likely buy from the same company for the rest of their lives.

According to a Philip Morris website cited by Axt, ‘Today’s teenager is tomorrow’s potential regular customer, and the overwhelming majority of smokers first begin to smoke while in their teens.’

For decades, tobacco companies have used rural imagery, such as the “Marlboro Man,” to promote their products to rural audiences since they make up a large percentage of the tobacco company’s consumers. Teenagers and pre-teens in rural communities are at an extremely high risk of abusing tobacco. The American Lung Association reports: “Tobacco use is higher in rural communities than in suburban and urban communities, and smokeless tobacco use is shockingly twice as common.

Rural youth are more likely to use tobacco and to start earlier than urban youth, perpetuating the cycle of tobacco addiction and death and disease.”

According to Lenore “Punkin” Shepard, the Tribe’s former Smoking Cessation employee and now the current Family Services Youth Prevention Coordinator says 45 percent of Native Americans abuse tobacco while “our youth usually average 20-22 percent where the national average is 17 percent.”

As a Senior in high school, Travis Spice says he has a lot of classmates who smoke. When asked if tobacco abuse is a problem within the Stockbridge-Munsee community, he says, “Yeah, there’s a lot of people up here who do it, like most of them I’d say, maybe even more than that.” Perhaps their brand of choice is Marlboro or Virginia Slims and perhaps their children are trying candy tobacco.

For more information, please see David Axt or “Punkin” Shepard.

rugs, bedding, lamps, and kitchen stools, as well as a new kitchen table, a new flat screen TV, and a new front door. The decorations are also new with colorful curtains, mirrors, and wall decals of flowers and words of affirmation. All the walls were painted different colors to match the living room's decorations, the bedrooms' covers, and the windows' curtains.

Jayci Malone said the Shelter's makeover will be important to the families who stay there: "Nobody wants to be in a situation where they have to stay in a homeless shelter. By giving them a nice place to stay we hope to give them a positive start to finding their own housing."

"Housing is a big need," Malone stressed. "We get people who come in here and they can stay for a maximum of 90 days. They're supposed to stay for only 30, but they can ask for an extension and everyone does because there is no place to go. They either can't afford to go anywhere else, they can't afford to move further away, or they can't afford the rent in other places. And, there's nothing here. There are waiting lists for the housing. And some people have credit issues that make it hard."

BATH SALTS, WHAT'S THE DIFFERENCE?

Though the name may sound harmless, bath salts are dangerous synthetic stimulant that carry the risk of easy overdose, hallucinations and even death. A synthetic, stimulant powder product that contains amphetamine-like chemicals, including mephedrone, which may have a high risk for overdose. Because the drug is new and some of the contents unknown, using it in any way is highly dangerous. Right now, bath salts are illegal in a growing number in U.S. States, as well as foreign countries like

Canada, Australia and Great Britain. Short-term effects include very severe paranoia that can sometimes cause users to harm themselves or others. Effects reported to Poison Control Centers include suicidal thoughts, agitation, combative/violent behavior, confusion, hallucinations/psychosis, increased heart rate, hypertension, chest pain, death or serious injury. The speed of onset is 15 minutes, while the length of the high from these drugs is 4-6 hours.

FALL INTO FITNESS WITH WALKTOBER – An Inspiring Walking Program

WHAT IS WALKTOBER?

October is an ideal time to walk. The temperatures are moderate and the fall colors are spectacular. Making the most of this great season, Walktober is a walking campaign designed to:

- Guide you through the benefits of walking
- Help you incorporate a daily stride into your routine
- Dramatically boost the amount you travel on foot
- Inspire you to make walking a priority – in October and beyond.

Use the log card and your Walktober leaf stickers to track your progress throughout October. Your goal is to accumulate 20 or more stickers during the 31-day program by recording dedicated walking minutes or daily steps (using a step counter worn all day).

WHY PARTICIPATE?

For many people, starting a physical activity program can be difficult. Work, family, and other responsibilities often crowd out time to do something good for yourself.

And a lack of direction or motivation makes it even easier to let fitness slide. But Walktober helps you get back on track and stay there, by making fitness fun with activities, articles, and rewards.

WHO CAN PARTICIPATE?

Everyone can start walking in October and experience success – whether you're just starting out or are already an avid walker.

WHAT ARE THE BENEFITS OF WALKTOBER?

In addition to the health benefits of starting or reinforcing a walking routine, participants can earn official Walktober incentives.

HOW DO I GET STARTED?

Complete the registration form below and return it to your Walktober coordinator, who will give you everything you need to fall into better fitness.
